

The Sun and the Moon

I am the moon, I stand alone
Reflecting off light that is not my own
Among the stars of a different birth
Forgotten by the slumberous earth

You are the sun, a sacred gift below
In golden awe, you beam and glow
I am the shadow of you that shines
They await your rays as they do not to mine

Incomparable is your presence
Even when set, I feel one's essence
For I am the moon and you are the sun
Everything I am, you have already outdone

I am the sun, my beauty untouchable
Deep inside, only cold and combustible
Too bright to be admired by gaze
Wishing for more than crimson rays

You are the moon, peace you bestow
Soft light blanketing the world below

I long to see each shifting phase

A new, shining silver face it displays

I'll always set so that you may shine

Thus, you are the one who is more divine

For I am the sun and you are the moon

It is you they dream of after I've left so soon