

MODERN ART

Learn about different artists from the 19th and 20th centuries and try some different techniques to create your very own modern art pieces.

This week's activities: Pop Art – Pointillism

Pop Art

Pop Artists like Andy Warhol and Roy Lichtenstein were inspired by things like comic books and images from advertisements. You might have seen Andy Warhol's print of a can of tomato soup.

Suggested Materials:

- Paper
- Pencil
- Paint (or crayons – anything you have, to add colour)

Directions:

1. Put 4 of the same picture on a page of blank paper (you can use our example or draw one).
2. Make each image a different colour. Try using unusual colours for whatever image you choose.

Pointillism (or Divisionism)

Georges Seurat developed this art style. Using small dots to create areas of colour, the dots create a picture.

Suggested Materials:

- Paper
- Markers (paint, pencil crayons and crayons would work as well)

Directions

1. Use our template below or draw your own picture as a starting point. Now make tiny dots of colour in the different spaces. Instead of colouring, you're 'dotting.'
2. Step back from your paper to see your whole picture and see what your dots have created.
