

interrupting the greys

by Chris McNamee

interrupting the greys

the sensation clouds the edges like perfumed smoke washing away all the guilt at the speed of a retreating tide retuning to the sea

leaving one single moment to float

before my toes scape the bottom, again

an overwhelming reminder of

of just how close to it

I am.